If you are a good one, there is really no other criterion. As Dr. Samuel Johnson remarked, the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. Some young men that seem to be of a very desirable, indeed very desirable, when they are single, are perfectly horrid as soon as they are married. All the latent brute there is in the heart comes out as soon as a sensitive and delicate being seeks her happiness in his companionship. The honeymoon lasts a very short time, the receptions and the round of parties are soon over, and then the two sit down to make home happy. If she has married a society man, he will take his hat and go down the city and come home till morning. If she has married a home engrossed in business, he will be fagged out when he comes home. He may be a gentleman, but he must seek to cheer, a drunken man that she must sit up for, a violent man that she fears, a vulgar man for whom she must apologize in short, there are thousands of ways of being bad husbands, and the worst of it is, that the poor silly women are apt to admire in single men the very traits that make bad husbands, and look with contempt or ridicule upon those quiet virtues that make home happy. Men with very little personal beauty or style, often make the wife happy—and sometimes quite the reverse. The number of ways of being a bad husband is almost as great as the number of ways of being a good one. No one can tell from the demeanor of a single man what sort of husband he will be. Mean time she must marry somebody. Eat; if you die it was a sort of mushroom. Baltimore Every Saturday.

A Terrible Infant.
Little Nellie was looking at "Wolf's Wild Animals" when Mr. Jenkins called, and appealed to that gentleman to explain one of the pictures.
"That's a wild bear," said he, and the little lady looked at it thoughtfully and replied:
"I don't look like you, does it, Mr. Jenkins?"
"I hope not," responded the guest.
"Because," said the artless innocent, "mamma said when your card was sent up, 'There's that old bore, Jenkins, again.'"
And it was a full minute before mamma's frozen lips thawed sufficiently to inform the nurse that it was Nellie's bedtime.

It must be eminently right and good to rise early, because it is so inhumanly hard to do it.

MANY YEARS AGO.
By the lake beyond the meadow,
Where the lilies blow,
As the young moon dipt and lifted
Her reflected bow
Lived the old dream of beauty,
Many years ago.

Something made the milk-white blossoms
Even whiter grow;
Something gave the dying sunset
An intenser glow.
And enriched the cup of pleasure,
Filled to overflow.

Hope was frail and passion fleeting;
It is often so.
Visions born of Golden sunsets
With the sunsets go;
To have loved is to have suffered
Martyrdom below.

By the lake beyond the meadow,
Where the lilies blow,
Oh, the glory there that perished
None shall ever know,
When a human heart was broken,
Many years ago.

A Centennial at Chicago.
We read in that well-informed journal, the American Correspondence, that preliminary steps are being taken for an International Exhibition, to be held in New York City in 1882, which will be the centennial anniversary of the close of the Revolution. It will be a blunder, the next international exhibition is located at the East. It belongs to the West. The only world's exhibitions yet held in this country have been located near the Atlantic seaboard. It is high time that foreign people are taught that but a very small portion of the United States borders the Atlantic coast, and that New York, Philadelphia and Boston are not the only American cities capable of successfully conducting and supporting a Universal Exposition. The most successful interstate exhibition of the country has its home in Chicago. The same sort of thing, which Chicago is the center, and the same enterprising people that have developed the resources of the Northwestern states, built its cities, and transacted its boundless commercial business, can and will furnish every element that is needed to make our international exhibition a success of which the world may be proud.

The additional expense of transporting foreign contributions to an exposition here would, at most, be a trifling affair, and would be most willingly borne by nations that supply us with their manufactured wares, and who take in exchange the grains and meats of our prairies. Visitors would gladly travel the additional distance from the point of embarkation, for they would have an opportunity never yet granted them of gaining a knowledge of the marvelous country whose material and intellectual progress reads to them like a dream.

The result of a permanent exposition here, as mentioned in another article, is carried out as it should speedily be, it will form a starting point toward the preparation of a permanent exposition here, a chance of consideration. Will not the projectors of that enterprise at once take steps, before New York has fairly embarked in the scheme, to secure for us the next American world's fair?

As the Review has said before, the proper time for this fair will be in 1882, the centenary of the recognition of America as a nation by the civilized powers of Europe.

How to Select a Husband.
It has been profoundly remarked, that the true way of telling a fool from a dunce, is to ask him, if you die, it was a mushroom. If you live, it was a mushroom. A similar method is employed in the selection of husbands; marry him, if he kills you, and then the two sit down to make home happy. If he is a good one, there is really no other criterion. As Dr. Samuel Johnson remarked, the proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof. Some young men that seem to be of a very desirable, indeed very desirable, when they are single, are perfectly horrid as soon as they are married. Peddler's Adventure.
When the peddler rang Mr. Bird's door-bell the other day Mr. Bird himself opened the door. Mr. Bird had the baby upon his arm, and there were four other children at his heels.

"Is the lady of the house in?" asked the peddler.
"Certainly she isn't," replied Bird.
"She is out." She is perennially and eternally out.

"Where can I see her?"
"Why, go down to the Woman Suffrage club-room; and if she isn't there, go to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals; and if she isn't there, visit the hall of the Association for Alleviating the Miseries of the Senegambians; and if she has finished there, look for her at the Church Aid Society, or at the Ninth Ward Soup-house, or at the Home of the Infirmed, or at the Refuge for Infirm Dogs, or at the Hospital for the Asthmatic, or at the St. Polycarp Orphan Asylum, or at some of these places. If you get on her track, you'll see more pauper and strong-minded women and underling things for the thousand than you ever saw in the whole course of your life."

"I wanted to sell her a cold-handled flat-iron, just out. Do you think she will buy one?"
"She will if you can prove that the naked cannibals in Senegambia are yearning for cold-handled flat-irons. She would buy diamonds for the chief of the cannibals, if they wanted them, I believe."

"I intended, also, to offer her a new kind of immovable hairpin, which goes down to the hair, and you just go down to the Home for the One-Legged, and persuade these cripples to cry for immovable hairpins, and she'll order 'em by the ton."

"Has she any children?"
"Well, I'm the one that appears to have 'em; just now, anyhow."

"Because I have a gum-tong for a feeding-bottle that is just the nicest thing you ever saw."

"Now," said Mr. Bird, "I'll tell you what to do. You get those paupers to swear they can't eat the soup they get at the soup-house with spoons; they must have it from bottles with a rubber nozzle, and Mrs. Bird will keep you so busy supplying the demand that you won't have a chance to sleep. You just try it. Buy up the paupers' babies."

"How'll I know her if I see her?"
"Why, she's a very large woman with a bent nose, and she talks all the time. You'll hear her talking as you get within a mile of her. She'll ask you to subscribe to the Senegambian fund and to the Asthmatic Asylum before you can get your breath. Probably she'll read you four or five letters from reform clubs, and she'll have the latest mind 'em. My opinion is that she wrote 'em herself. It don't make any difference, but you might mention that since she left the baby has had five letters from reform clubs, and she'll have the latest mind 'em. Tell her if she can manage to drop in for a minute between now and the fourth of July she might maybe wash the baby and give the other children a chance to remember how she looks. But she needn't come if it will interfere with the happiness of the one-legged mendicants, or make asthmatic patients miserable. Mind and mention it to her now, will you?"

"I will."

"All right; then I'll go in and put some fresh sticking-plaster on Johnny's skull. And with baby singing a vociferous solo, and the other children clinging to his leg, Mr. Bird retreated and shut the door. The peddler had determined to propose to a girl that night. He changed his mind, and resolved to remain a bachelor.—Cincinnati Times.

TELEGRAPHIC.
COMPILED FROM THE DAILY OREGONIAN.

LONDON, March 19.—The Examiner learns on good authority, that negotiations are in progress between the courts of St. Petersburg and Madrid, for cession by purchase to Russia of the Ladronne Islands. They would constitute a magnificent base for cruiser operations in the China sea.

FESTH, March 19.—One hundred and twenty thousand persons are rendered homeless by the recent overflow. Eighty-two hundred out of ten thousand houses have fallen and nineteen hundred persons drowned. The waters are subsiding and the adjacent towns are out of danger.

CAUCUTTA, March 19.—The origin of the trouble between Burness and British residents at Mandalay is that the latter protested and refused to give up to slaughter two royal princes and their families, who have taken refuge at the residence. The king of Burmah, who is said to be mad with drink, urged by fanatics and the reactionary party, threatens to force the residency. Such a hostile measure on part of the government, it is believed, would be the signal for a general massacre of citizens.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—At the session of the state central committee of the workmen's party to-day, nine counties were represented. An address was issued to the common people of California, soliciting them to vote for the new constitution. A resolution was offered requesting Welock to resign as vice-president of the party, on the ground of not being a voter, and using abusive language. Welock refused, in a speech, denying the committee, and claiming he had been elected by the state convention, a higher power than the committee, and he would appeal to the people if the resolution was carried. The resolution was then adopted, ten to one to remove Welock from office, and Clitus Barbour was chosen in his place.

A very rare phenomenon for this latitude was witnessed in this city this morning between the hours of 8 and 9 o'clock. It consisted of a couple of mock suns or "sun dogs," which had formed at the northern and southern limbs of a halo.

ANAHIM, March 20.—Dennis Kearney spoke in Santa Ana this afternoon, and in the course of his speech took occasion to grossly abuse several of the prominent citizens. After he had eaten supper he was approached by a gentleman who had visited him and asked his authority for his statements. He said that he was a public agitator, and any local grievances he could pick up, he gave forth in his own way, and that any one had a right to get on the platform and refute it. While he was speaking a man named Lord struck him a powerful blow in the face, and in the melee that ensued, Kearney drew a pistol but it was taken away from him and he was severely beaten. He presented a pitiable appearance. The deputy sheriff arrived and rescued him.

New York, March 21.—A Tribune Washington special repeats the statement that the Pacific coast senators will introduce during the extra session a modified scheme for the restriction of Chinese immigration, and adds that it is probable Senator Blaine will take occasion to explain more fully his position in regard to the question. The measure, however, will not be pushed to final action, and is only designed to keep the subject before the country and in a position in which it can be reached early next winter.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—In the house Democratic caucus meeting to-day a general interchange of views occurred with regard to such new provisions as the sub-committee, and after conferring with Senator Thurman, chairman of the senate caucus committee, it was decided to postpone all further consideration of the question at issue until to-morrow morning, at which time a joint meeting will be held with the senate committee and definite action be taken.

Springer, Carlisle and Reagan were appointed a sub-committee on the part of the house committee for the purpose of considering the joint meeting to-morrow, embodying provisions for the repeal of certain portions of the federal election laws; and such new provisions as the sub-committee may consider desirable to enact. In connection with the proposed repeal in case the majority shall determine that it is not advisable to adhere to the original programme of passing the appropriation bills precisely in form so far as regards political repeal sections which now permit the presence of troops at the polls under certain circumstances, and to so modify the same as to prohibit the British law on the subject, which prohibits soldiers being stationed at any point nearer than two miles from the polls, or to go to them except for the purpose of voting, which case they must immediately afterwards return to their station. The bill will also embody the repeal of jurors' test oath provisions of existing law.

HE HITS PORTLAND WITH HIS STAFF—GOING TO WASHINGTON FOR A HIVE W-A-W.

Moses, chief of the Methow tribe of Indians, Humili, late chief of the Walla Walla, but who sometime since abdicated in favor of Young Chief, Ilhe Jim, a nephew of Moses, and a son of the late chief of the Walla Walla, arrived in town yesterday morning from Vancouver. "Abe Lincoln, a halfbreed, who is employed at the Simcoe reservation as government blacksmith, was also of the party and acts as interpreter. Major Boyle, of the 21st infantry had the party in charge. Immediately upon disembarking from the steamer the "savage warlike" government "presumptuous" proceeded to the house of Fishel & Roberts, and were soon busily engaged in appraising themselves after the manner of their white brethren. All went well until Moses and his staff in the efforts of a half dozen clerks to suit his aesthetic taste, and at last a suit of "diagonal" was agreed upon as the proper thing. But when Edgerton, the haberdashery clerk, brought the chief an open back shirt, which he had just purchased, he seemed to be in a hurry to get it off, and the trembling salesman beat a hasty retreat up the rear stairway as the chief and his staff followed him, and the offending garment and—put it on. The news of their presence in the store caused a large crowd to gather in the saleroom, eager to see the big Indian in the purchase of a shirt to do the laundry when the Wilamette rolled noselessly onward to the sea beneath the shade of a pathless forest, where to-day its banks are lined by miles of docks, imposing buildings, and the mast of a ship peeping from all parts of the world. Leaving Government square Moses and his party proceeded down Yamhill street, and while in the street they were surrounded by a crowd of people, and for some time enjoyed the view of the city. Moses, through the interpreter, spoke of the time he was here before over 30 years ago—before the houses of the place faced the land, when the Wilamette rolled noselessly onward to the sea beneath the shade of a pathless forest, where to-day its banks are lined by miles of docks, imposing buildings, and the mast of a ship peeping from all parts of the world.
